A Word about Risk

Stocks generally fluctuate more in value than bonds and may decline significantly over short time periods. The TOBAM Emerging Markets Fund (the “Fund”) may significantly overweight or underweight, relative to the MSCI® EM Index (the Fund’s benchmark index), certain countries, companies, industries or market sectors, which may cause the Fund’s performance to be more or less sensitive to developments affecting those countries, companies, industries or sectors. To the extent the Fund invests in foreign securities, the Fund’s performance will be influenced by political, social and economic factors affecting investments in foreign issuers. Special risks associated with investments in foreign issuers include exposure to currency fluctuations, less liquidity, less developed or less efficient trading markets, lack of comprehensive company information, political and economic instability and differing auditing and legal standards. Investments denominated in foreign currencies are subject to the risk that such currencies will decline in value relative to the U.S. dollar and affect the value of these investments held by the Fund. The securities of issuers located or doing substantial business in emerging market countries tend to be more volatile and less liquid than the securities of issuers located in countries with more mature economies. Emerging markets generally have less diverse and less mature economic structures and less stable political systems than those of developed countries. Investments in these countries may be subject to enhanced political, economic, legal, market and currency risks. The risks may include less protection of property rights and uncertain political and economic policies, the imposition of capital controls and/or foreign investment limitations by a country, nationalization of businesses and the imposition of sanctions by other countries. A strategy implemented by the Fund’s adviser may fail to produce the intended results. The adviser may attempt to execute strategies for the Fund using proprietary quantitative models. Investments selected using these models may perform differently than expected as a result of the factors used in the models, the weight placed on each factor, changes from the factors’ historical trends, and technical issues in the construction and implementation of the models (including, for example, data problems and/or software issues). There is no guarantee that the use of quantitative models will result in effective investment decisions for the Fund. The Fund is a newly formed mutual fund and has no history of operations.

Before investing investors should carefully read the prospectus and consider the Fund’s investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses. Please call 1-800-562-6674 to obtain a prospectus which contains this and other information about the Fund.
